1995 The World Conservation Union brings together states, government agencies, and a diverse range of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in a unique world partnership that seeks to influence, encourage, and assist societies throughout the world to conserve the integrity and diversity of nature as well as to ensure that any use of natural resources is equitable and ecologically sustainable. This book contains case studies in environmental communication and education that were presented at the General Assembly workshop of the World Conservation Union held in January 1994. The book is divided into three sections: the first seeks to provide some bases for planning education and communication, the second looks at NGO education programs, and the third addresses planning education at the national level. Papers include: (1) Influences on Pro-environmental Practices (Joy Palmer); (2) Behaviour, Social Marketing, and the Environment (William Smith); (3) A Basis for Environmental Education in the Sahel (Raphael Ndiaye); (4) Communication: An Instrument of Government Policy (Agnes Gomis and Frits Hesselink); (5) Seabird Conservation on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence: The Effects of Education on Attitude and Behaviour towards a Marine Resource (Kathleen Blanchard); (6) Environmental Education Programmes for Natural Areas: A Brazilian Case Study (Suzana Padua); (7) Addressing Urban Issues Through Environmental Education (Shyamala Krishna); (8) The CAMPFIRE Programme in Zimbabwe: Changes of Attitudes and Practices of Rural Communities towards Natural Resources (Taparendava Maveneke); (9) IUCN in Environmental Education in Western Africa and the Sahel (Monique Trudel); (10) A Matter of Motivation (Ibrahim Thiaw); (11) Education and Communication Support to the Establishment of Protected Area Systems (Rutger-Jan Schoen); (12) Canada: National Environmental Citizenship Initiative (T. Christine Hogan); (13) The Netherlands: Inter-departmental Cooperation on Environmental Education (Peter Bos); (14) Scotland: Developing a National Strategy for Environmental Education (John C. Smyth); (15) Spain: The Coordination of Environmental Education (Susana Calvo); (16) Australia: Community Involvement in Conservation of Biological Diversity (Chris Mobbs); (17) Australia: Education and Extension: Management's Best Strategy for the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park (Donald J. Alcock); (18) Nepal: Environmental Education and Awareness as Elements of the National Conservation Strategy (Dadri Dev Pande); (19) Zambia: Environmental Education (Juliana Chileshe); and (20) Ecuador: Raising Environmental Awareness (Marco Encalada). 1995-06-29 Self-regulated learning is an important new area of research on college learning and teaching. The purpose of this volume of New Directions for Teaching and Learning is to provide a sampling of some of the central issues regarding self-regulated learning in college courses and classrooms. These issues include the definition of self-regulated learning, how to improve students' self-regulated learning, and how faculty can use the ideas from this research to improve their own teaching. The chapters in this volume reflect current research and thinking about self-regulated learning for college students. While more research and development is needed on this topic, the authors provide an immediate context for efforts to improve college learning and teaching. This is the 63rd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Teaching and Learning. For more information on the series, please see the Journals and Periodicals page. 2017-07-05 Examining the prolific growth of UK charitable emergency food provision over the past fifteen years, Hungry Britain uses the human right to food as a pathway to developing solutions to food poverty. Hannah Lambie-Mumford draws on data from the country's two largest charitable food providers to explore the effectiveness of this emerging system of food acquisition, its enduring sustainability, and, most importantly, where responsibility lies for ensuring that all people can realize their human right to food. She shows that the increasing tendency of charitable food providers to take responsibility for protecting people against food poverty occurs in tandem with significant cuts to the welfare state--cuts shaping both the need for and nature of emergency food provision. Arguing for a clear, rights-based framework, this book envisions a future where a range of actors--from the state to charities and the food industry--will be jointly accountable in combating food poverty. 2010 With climate change now a certainty, the question is how much change there will be and what can be done about it. One of the answers is through adaptation. Many of the lessons that are being learned in adaptation are from success stories from the field. This publication contains eleven case studies covering different ecosystems and regions around the world. Its aim is to summarize some current applications of the Ecosystem-Based Adaptation concept and its tools used around the world, and also draw lessons from experiences in conservation adaptation. With climate change now a certainty the question is how much change there will be and what can be done about it One of the answers is through adaptation 2008 Olympic Education is not only a text book for students and teachers in physical and sport education but also for course instructors and coaches in children's youth sport programmes, as well as for executives in sports federations. It answers the question, what the term Olympic really means in the broader context of the Olympic Games movement and as a global purpose and new challenge for a balanced physical, social and moral education. Olympic education has a traditional vision and an important future mission that is relevant for all children and youths, in schools as well as in sport clubs. In five parts and fifteen chapters, the book shows why the Olympic ideals are a modern challenge not only for a new physical and sport education but also for the development of essential life skills for today. It introduces pedagogical and didactical fundamentals for an Olympic education, in order to bring motor abilities, social behaviour and moral actions in sports and everyday life back together again - in the mind, learning and actions of children and youths, but also of grown-ups in the social settings where young people live. In five parts and fifteen chapters the book

2023-07-12 This law school casebook provides a comprehensive review of the estate planning process. It is easily adaptable to two and three-credit courses and seminars. The new edition retains the basic structure of the prior edition with significant updates to reflect recent developments in law and practice. Part One focuses on the substantive law applicable to estate planning, while Part Two concentrates on estate planning practice itself. Extensive researching and drafting exercises are included to hone the student's practical skills. Most of the material is self-explanatory and thus the professor may reserve class time for more difficult topics, areas that merit special attention, and concerns raised by local law.
